

Dear friends,

In March we had a good crusade in Mpungamhlophe near Ulundi.
The local pastor we worked with had done his "homework." So, we found the site excellently well prepared. The tall grass had been mowed, a team toilet had been built, and two large water tanks had been set up. Unfortunately, it must be said that we rarely experience this.

The evangelistic services brought immediate results. In the second week, the believers eagerly attended our starter course. Towards the end of the crusade, we also prayed there for the filling of the Holy Spirit. I have to say that I haven't seen people pray like this for a long time. Bonginkosi was in the process of teaching on the subject; but before he came to an end, he felt the impulse from the Holy Spirit to stop teaching now. He told the new converts to be quiet until they are ready to pray aloud. After a period of silence, the Holy Spirit came like a mighty wave. Some were so fulfilled that they could not find their way from the prayer tent to the large gospel tent for the evening service and came back to continue praying. Some prayed on their knees or lying on the floor. It was something very special.

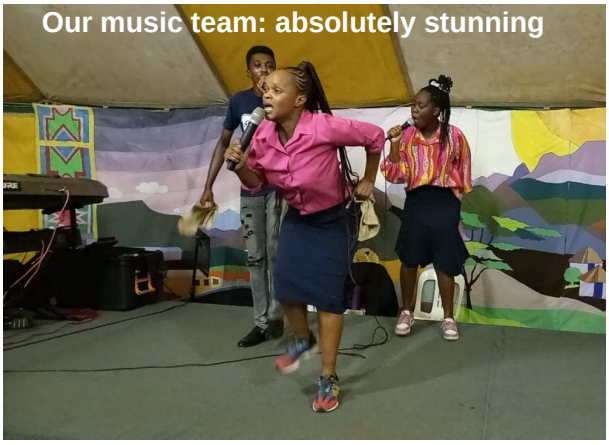

The chairwoman of the municipality, who is responsible for the village, came to faith at the beginning of the campaign. Later she gave her testimony in the evening service. She had always had the feeling of rotten flesh in her throat before. Doctors could not help her and only said that she suffers from too much stomach acid. After she became a believer, she prayed for the problem, and she was relieved of this unpleasant feeling. In the past, she had often been warned not to eat anything that was offered to her, as she has many envious people because of her position. She also thanks the Lord for saving her from assassination attempts three times in the past.

Many other things happened in this short time, such as the healing of a boy who suffered from seizures. His mother came to faith, and he was healed.

A week after the crusade ended, the pastor called and asked for one of us to come and see what had become of the work. The new converts came not only to the church, but also people who had not come to the tent. They had not been able to come in the evening for various reasons but had heard the sermons. Some put a chair in the garden to listen. Now they had joined the church. The pastor was absolutely overwhelmed, because during a crusade it is always very difficult to estimate what really happened. He has promised to notify us when the baptism takes place. In addition to the Sunday services, the believers meet every afternoon for prayer from Monday to Friday.

Thank you very much for your loyal support and best regards from Bodo and Katja
